Message from General Director

The 4th wave of Covid-19 made 2021 a challenging year for many businesses while reshaping the future of work.

Though coping with the disruptions caused by COVID-19, businesses not only exerted themselves to sustain the operation but also put people as a top priority. Employees' safety needs, i.e. remote work, PPE, or on-site workforce reductions were quickly responded to. Also, as over 96% of employees were willing to be reskilled, businesses have wisely invested in online training and development activities.

Whether it's reskilling or wellbeing, employers' efforts will improve employee engagement and efficiency, as well as talent retention and employer-of-choice branding. All of these, ultimately, ensured long-term and stable business performance.

The experience of online recruitment amid the pandemic

The pandemic has also prompted the shift in recruitment practice. Candidates gradually get used to searching, applying, and interviewing online. Employers also widely implement this virtual method. Our survey “Graduate employment in COVID-19 pandemic” indicates that 62.5% of employers turn to the virtual hiring process amid the pandemic.

However, this reasonable alternative still has certain downsides. Candidates face difficulties evaluating work environment and future career path through a laptop screen. Employers too struggle to access candidates properly, e.g. observing body language and candidates' reactions to the working culture.

That's why more and more employers utilizing online skills assessments. Psychological assessments, besides the well-known reference check, are becoming more prominent to gauge candidates' qualifications and resilience. This market is even expected to grow at a high rate in the Asia-Pacific region by 2027.

A promising 2022 for many industries

Recently, with flexible strategies to adapt to the new normal, the economy is showing many optimistic signs, followed by the bustling activity of the recruitment market. Adecco Vietnam's "Compensation and Benefits in 2022" survey, which you can find on the following pages, reveals promising predictions about hiring needs and welfare policies this year.

Thanks to several reasons, various sectors will search for more talents in 2022, namely Technology and Media, Financial Services, Healthcare, Energy, E-commerce, Manufacturing & Engineering, etc.

Vietnam remains a potential destination for foreign investments thanks to its young, abundant, and adaptable personnel. Plus, several FTAs entering into force i.e. the recent RCEP will help the Vietnamese economy gain more prospects, leading to a surge in hiring requests. Then, the tidal wave of digital transformation in recent years, the rising demand for healthcare, and the regional supply chain movement altogether will open many employment opportunities for a high-quality workforce in the coming time.

More sought-after roles to drive business transformation

Employers are also hiring for new positions based on business transformation needs.

The digitalization and remote work trend will stimulate interest in Technology and Data positions. Also, as we are increasingly interacting online, creative positions associated with visualization and online experiences such as Graphic Designers, UI/UX Designer, or Digital Marketing roles are in-demand. Likewise, jobs related to business adaptation such as Strategy & Transformation, Value Creation, or Chief of Staff are also on the rise.

In today's ever-changing market, it's certainly not easy to focus on both running your business and navigating your workforce.

Yet as always, we've got your back!

With diverse experiences in the HR industry and more than 10 years in the Vietnam market, we can offer more than just Payroll and Recruitment services. Indeed, we provide one-stop solutions for all your HR needs, from Training, Candidate Assessment Tools to Salary Benchmarking, to ensure you both convenience and efficiency.

This 9th edition of Vietnam Salary Guide 2022 is another effort from Adecco Vietnam team to provide you with a broad overview of the current market offerings in 2 major cities: Hanoi and Ho Chi Minh City. We hope this release will be a handy tool for your strategic talent development and recruitment in 2022.

For comprehensive data on salary, compensation, and all types of employee benefits within your specific industry, peer groups, or the marketplace, please refer to our Salary Benchmarking Service.

Human Resources

Market overview

2021 has been an exciting time for HR leaders with challenges abound.

Never before has HR played a such critical role in helping organizations remain competitive while navigating COVID-19 lockdown and on-site work model. Recruitment demands for HR professionals in the Industrial, Technology, Energy, and Financial Services sectors increased significantly.

In 2022, it is upon HR to drive better collaboration in the new era of work and facilitate hybrid and remote workplaces. And by leading this transformation, HR professionals with a data-driven mindset, work design agility, and mental health knowledge, would be in high demand.

Ms. Van Nguyen, Team Leader

Advice for employers

1. Build a strong talent pipeline and quantify personnel needs across the business, then create a tailored talent development program to close the skill gaps and to future-proof your workforce.
2. A healthy culture where people feel belonging, valued, and acknowledged can be a competitive advantage since business models can be easily replicated.
3. Plan an employee experience program to explore and respond to employees' expectations, which will eventually improve satisfaction, performance, and productivity.

Advice for candidates

1. Become a business partner of the organization to make rapid changes to adapt to new challenges and achieve the goal of building a sustainable and healthy corporate culture.
2. Develop expertise in building a lean organizational structure and creating a healthy working culture, along with offering retention activities via talent development and total reward strategies.
3. Learn and familiarize with upcoming trends such as HR digital transformation to gain an advantage edge.

Legal

Market overview

2021 has seen a downturn in legal recruitment with a considerably lower need for lawyers. The lack of businesses had led a few firms to liquidate or reduce their scope of services.

However, on the brighter side, several new international law firms have been set up, leading to a slight increase in the need for partners.

In 2022, the hiring demand is forecasted to rise for in-house legal experts as companies are gradually shifting from using external legal services to more efficient use of internal legal advisory. Industries to watch out for include Energy, Technology, Financial Services, and Pharmaceuticals.

Ms. Van Nguyen, Team Leader

Advice for employers

1. Employers should open career tracks for those who want to grow beyond Legal, especially for repetitive jobs such as Compliance, Audit, and Risk Management. Organizations should proactively generate more opportunities for the Legal department across Finance, M&A, Procurement, and Investor Relations. Such efforts are crucial to building a strong and adaptable Legal team.
2. Build a next-generation Legal team by offering training in areas such as Investment, Project Management, M&A, Analytical Skills.

Advice for candidates

1. Embrace the evolution of legal technology to save time, cut operation costs while enhancing the work quality.
2. The legal challenges are expanding. Legal employees should offer more than on-demand concierge services and should have a voice in numerous strategic and tactical decisions, rather than being brought in only after the fact.

Technology & Media

Market overview

Another year of the pandemic has proven technology can sustain us through the tough time and continue to redefine how we work, live, and interact. Business leaders in Vietnam have been quick to embrace tech trends throughout digital boost, resulting in the high demand for top-tier talents in CIO, Solution Architect, DevOps, and other Engineer roles.

In 2022, with economic recovery accelerated by digital transformation and product innovation, skilled tech talents in E-commerce, Fintech, and Blockchain technologies will be highly sought-after.

Mr. Chuong Nguyen, Associate Director, Recruitment Business

Advice for employers

1. The IT recruitment market is considered a red ocean with countless attractive opportunities available. Besides a compelling compensation scheme, non-cash incentives, a clear career path, and company culture should be taken into consideration.
2. To increase competitiveness and ensure alignment, companies should invest in employer branding, prepare a detailed job description, build a well-structured interview process, and have proper salary benchmarking tools.
3. Hybrid and remote work is the new norm. Companies should have policies in place to build an effective working environment.

Advice for candidates

1. With the increase in opportunities in the IT industry, candidates should prepare adequate English skills, improve teamwork in a multi-cultural environment, also other crucial skills such as critical thinking, self-learning, and problem analysis.
2. Continuously learn and keep updating the new technologies for the future such as Cloud or AWS, towards cross-platform understanding but still ensure the depth of field to have an overview of the product development process.
3. Ready for a full-time remote/hybrid working model soon with strong self-management ability.

Sales & Marketing: FMCG

Market overview

Although on average household incomes have fallen 12% (Cimigo Vietnam Consumer Trends 2021) making the hard-hit to consumer purchasing power, the COVID-19 outbreaks have accelerated the focus on a healthier lifestyle, food, and beverage propositions during the past year. Recruitment activity has risen over the Retail and Premium Food sectors with more demand for E-commerce Head, new Business Development Director, and Sales & Marketing manager.

In 2022, digital transformation will continue to spur demand for online shopping. Consequently, hiring needs will continue to grow within the Food & Beverage sector via Retail and E-commerce platforms.

Advice for employers

1. Run an Agile Team or Crisis-management Center to define appropriate actions for different scenarios and establish trigger points that determine when to begin detailed planning and execute those actions.
2. Identify changes in consumer behaviors and improve awareness of user experience (UX) for better service offerings.
3. Actively change leadership styles - focusing less on controls and more on culture and connections.

Advice for candidates

1. Successful sales forces would be the ones who have a data-driven mindset to understand the changing customer behaviors and pain points, then engage with them.
2. Business acumen is another bonus point. With deep business knowledge, you can utilize your insights to undertake more value-added activities.
3. Make yourself ready for every reskilling and upskilling opportunity. Also, follow all safe systems of work for your well-being and productivity.

Sales & Marketing: Healthcare

Market overview

Telehealth and telemedicine are the biggest healthcare transformations in 2021 with millions of users under social distancing and lockdown. The Covid-19 outbreaks may have delayed the establishment and expansion of new businesses entering Vietnam, but it could not stop companies from hiring key personnel for Sales, Marketing, and Medical Affairs positions during the year.

In 2022, Pharmaceuticals and Healthcare companies will continue to recruit more field people for Sales and Marketing roles as well as Market Access professionals to bounce back after a year of COVID-19.

Advice for employers

1. Patient behavior is shifting into convenience as well as wanting more guidance from a trusted pharmacist. Consider changing from traditional models to tech-enabled models for higher-quality, more flexibility, better experience, lower-cost, and more accessible care.
2. Digital health will play an increasingly critical role in improving the healthcare system. Companies should set up a virtual health support team and an integrated healthcare ecosystem to develop a range of services across the continuum of care for sustainable growth opportunities.
3. Besides redeploying talent for new business operations, employers should focus on resilience and promoting mental wellness with the goal of prevention for all employees.

Advice for candidates

1. Acquiring a new skillset, especially a digital skill, will help you utilize all advantages to quickly catch up with the digital transformation in your workplace.
2. Be ready and take more responsibilities into the digital transformation of the company, pro-actively create new value for the organization, and shows resilience in an unknown situation.
3. To maintain your productivity level and working spirits, take care of your mental well-being by healthily embracing challenges or sharing your problems with co-workers, counselors, or trusted friends.

Sales & Marketing: Industrials

Market overview

The pandemic breakout in late Q2 caused 2021 to be one of the most difficult years for both businesses and employees. Unlike 2020, companies are better prepared with policies to support employees financially and mentally. Also, employees are more familiar with the working-from-home model. Due to the fear of infection, some still expect this flexibility even after a social distancing period.

2021 ushers a new regular working style and environment: digital transformation, flexibility, and digital marketing operations. As a result of limited international flights, more top management positions are open for local Vietnamese or expatriates who currently living in Vietnam only.

In preparation for growth after COVID-19, Sales and Business Development roles are still in-demand in certain industries such as E-commerce, IT, Agriculture, Logistics. Meanwhile, Construction and Renewable Energy confront significant changes in regulatory and demand.

Mr. Tin Nguyen, Consultant

Advice for employers

1. The reduction of negative impacts of the pandemic, along with the government's commitment to economic recovery and easing travel restrictions has brought a better industry outlook. Companies could consider setting more ambitious sales goals or implementing growth decisions such as market entry or business line expansion.
2. To deliver new goals and business plans, companies should ensure a strong talent pipeline by increasing hiring activities, especially for Business Development, Technical Sales or Technical Support roles. Training would also be important to win the competition and capture growth opportunities in this phase.
3. The switch to virtual meetings could impact the sales team morale and their ability to meet their KPIs. Thus, employers should promote mental well-being, recognition, and motivation initiatives to enhance resilience, working spirits, and retention.

Advice for candidates

1. Improve technical awareness and digital skills, also leverage data to capture market opportunities, stay productive, and ensure continual delivery to clients, partners, and other stakeholders.
2. Adaptability, problem-solving skills, emotional intelligence, and resilience are desirable qualities that you need to acquire to thrive when facing unforeseen challenges.
3. If your company implements a new business strategy post-pandemic, discuss openly with your line manager to ensure you clearly understand it and can deliver consistent performance.

Engineering & Manufacturing

Market overview

2021 witnessed strong demand from US and European manufacturing enterprises. Resulting from the regional supply chain movement, Sourcing Offices and Energy sectors have the highest placement volume with 50% of the whole industrial and manufacturing total volume. In terms of functions, the pipe would split respectively with 30% for Quality Management, 25% for Supply Chain Management, and 10% for Project Management.

As smart manufacturing has evolved, complex problem-solving, negotiation & leadership skills are massively required recently. The market also seeks top talents with supplier management ability, strong technical background, and comprehensive engineering knowledge.

In 2022, manufacturers with digital technology adoption could enhance operational efficiencies as their competitive edge. Thus, the Hi-tech and Automation domains would outrace menial manufacturing settings. Besides the supply chain growth, outsourcing centers in furniture, household appliances, apparel, and parts would also bring more hiring volume. Alongside infrastructure development, professionals within the Construction and Engineering sector will be sought-after as their industry continues to perform at the highest level soon.

Advice for employers

1. Design resilient, risk-tolerant supply-chain structures and lean production systems to achieve real agility and systematic response to new challenges.
2. Promote operations digital transformation and build a skill set that will help key departments respond well to the changes.
3. Commit and ensure employee-training budgets for launching tailored learning courses to close critical skill gaps.

Advice for candidates

1. Comply with all COVID-19 guidance and capture new technology skills needed.
2. Sharpen your problem-solving skills and build up a flexible, disciplined, and independent working style to adapt to the new working models.
3. A combination of stressful events, such as compliance pressures, interpersonal conflicts, and lack of interaction, may affect your performance. So, finding an appropriate way to communicate with colleagues and keep updated with any unforeseen scenarios while working remotely.

Financial Services

Market overview

Due to numerous restrictions in place, investing in the Vietnam market is fraught with difficulties. The hiring need for such positions, i.e. Investment Director for Private Equity, has seen a slight decrease throughout the past year. On the contrary, securities and asset management firms are expanding rapidly, and the demand for roles such as Head of Bonds, Brokerage Manager, Investment Associate, Portfolio Manager, etc., is rising in tandem to meet the growth objectives.

Under the COVID-19 situation, individuals tend to be more mindful of their well-being. Hence, healthcare and life insurance firms continue growing and hiring more senior executives such as Heads of Business Transformation, Chiefs of Innovation, Head of Health and Wellbeing, Client Services roles, etc.

Following the rapid development of user growth channels during months of social distancing, the demand for Online Partnership Managers, Heads of User Growth, Business Development Managers, and other related positions has also expanded in the Online Commerce and Fintech industries.

Mr. Vinh Phan, Principal Consultant

Advice for employers

1. Along with the development of technology in the financial sector in recent years, many recruitment trends are emerging such as the adaptation of new tech e.g. blockchain, and automation in the accounting process.
2. There's a rising need to hire accounting professionals capable of high-value tasks who are also skilled at working within environments that include automation tools.
3. Big data or IT resources are also in great demand in the Financial Service recruitment market.

Advice for candidates

1. Keep up with the latest IT skills to meet employers' needs.
2. Acquire an adequate understanding of advisory and legal.
3. Be ready for remote/ hybrid work environments.

Finance & Accounting

Market overview

Compared to the previous year, the market did not fluctuate much. Throughout the challenging pandemic period, companies are progressively acclimating to the situation, and recruitment is also becoming more active accordingly. Employers, however, are less likely to boost salary budgets because of COVID-19's influence.

The past year has witnessed an upwards trend of hiring Strategy-related positions from Manager to Director level, namely Strategy, Business Transformation, Value Creation, etc. These professionals are responsible for developing feasible and profitable long-term goals, also identifying the organization's overall purpose, all of which help businesses to be on the right growth track.

These roles were commonly seen in either technology, data-driven businesses, or B2C enterprises. However, for now, the expansion of businesses plus more challenges to deal with leads to the high demand for these positions in B2B corporations also.

Ms. Ngan Bui, Consultant

Advice for employers

1. Prepare for the digital transformation by equipping themselves with the knowledge of fintech, and also a comprehensive understanding of technological tools now being applied in the field.
2. Keep themselves updated on the social transformation trend likely to affect the F&A sector, such as digitalization to enhance their company productivity and save time/cost in the long run,
3. Consider changing their mindset about the needed skills and qualifications for employees. To diversify their client profiles and scope of services, they should recruit employees with knowledge of multi-services.

Advice for candidates

1. Professional designations i.e. Chartered Accountant (CA), Certified Management Accountant (CMA), and Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) are absolute musts for junior to senior roles. Fresh graduates or employees with 1-3 years experience should be having a CFA level 1 or 2, whereas Manager or other C-level personnel should be equipped with a CFA level 3.
2. Regardless of their seniority, it's essential to learn new IT-related skills to keep up with the fast-growing pace of the F&A industry. English is another important skill that many C-level candidates are still lacking, thus creating a drawback when pursuing opportunities with foreign companies.
3. Polish soft skills such as planning and organizing, multi-tasking, analytical and problem-solving, communication, teamwork, also the capacity to work without supervision and under pressure.

Professional Services

Market overview

Generally, the COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in a drop in hiring demand in a variety of industries, including Real Estate, Hospitality, Education, and Business Consultancy. However, new and transformative technologies have been rapidly entering the workplace even during the pandemic, allowing businesses to innovate and thrive in an increasingly digital world.

The rising trend of digitalization has had a significant impact on recruitment strategies, in which a strong grasp of digital and business transformation offers a notable competitive advantage in the hiring selection criteria. Besides, as the number of technology-based enterprises investing in Vietnam increases throughout the past year, the hiring demand in the sectors of Edutech, Proptech, and the online platform for B2B services, as a result, has also risen accordingly.

Advice for employers

1. In response to the technical influence and challenges brought on by the pandemic, the leadership team should be willing to rethink traditional ways of doing business and apply new methods.
2. Keeping the teams engaged and productivity high should be among the top priorities for companies, especially now that the hybrid working model is becoming more popular.
3. Explore new benefits schemes and perks, particularly those related to employees' wellbeing and mental health support, will be key to keeping the team motivated.

Advice for candidates

1. Strong business acumen and operational excellence are among the top requirements from companies. Candidates need to excel at managing senior stakeholders, budgeting, planning, and analyzing.
2. Since digital transformation is an important part of business, employees who have a good command of digital transition and business transformation can gain a huge advantage. In the time of hybrid work, employees should be ready for the new way of working by enhancing several skills, e.g. communication, virtual teamwork, and time management.
